

digit diary

If you are ever curious about what the Digit gang is up to, this is the place to get all the inside info. From the latest game we're obsessing about to the newest intern we're driving up the wall – it's all here folks.

The Test Centre felt a little empty at the beginning of the new year. Most of the guys were still trying to recover from what could be termed, an excellent new year celebration so getting out of bed was a challenge. Manish has gone back to Hyderabad for good and Dhriti went back to school. Moreover, Mithun packed his bags and left for CES. So the Test Centre had just Abhijit, Aditya and Arnab. We're still trying to figure out what the three did over the course of one week without any eyes to watch over them. For all we know, a devious scheme might have been hatched, the results of which shall be seen in the months to come.

Speaking of Mithun, the guy hauled a decent set of equipment to cover CES. There was the tripod, gimbal, micro-phones, DSLR, and a bunch of other gadgets. We remember the wide smile he was sporting as he left office with all that stuff. It's a pity we couldn't catch the moment his smile transformed into the deepest frowns that mankind has ever seen. You see, all that equipment was conveniently left behind by the airlines at the layover stop and the lad was left gearless, in a foreign city, with just one set of clothes and a massive event to cover. Between all the running and sleepless nights owing to the hectic CES schedule, he ended up wearing the same shirt and pants for five days straight. If the cold weather of Vegas in January hadn't kept the sweat at bay, he'd have stunk up the entire convention centre. The stress of the entire ordeal was so bad that his circadian rhythm was knocked out of whack for good. Abhijit swears that he's caught Mithun falling asleep at his desk cause of the jetlag. Mind you, it's been two weeks since he returned, jetlag doesn't last this long.

The Test Labs sees some weird gadgets every now and then, but this one wasn't all that weird. It was a white noise machine, you know, the kind that spews the sounds of the oceans or that of a calm rainy day. It basically helps people concentrate as the ambient noise fills up the room. Alas, our rickety ACs are so loud that they completely drown out everything else. So the white noise machine ended up adding to the cacophony of the Test Centre. As a result, even after the initial enthusiasm, it was relegated to a dark, damp corner of the Test Center where it now ponders the meaning of life, universe and everything to the eternally looping sounds of the ocean, thunder and rainfall. That's about it for this month, January is usually a drab month. Here's to hoping for a better February.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

Snoooooore

– Mithun at his desk

DISCUSSIONS

Every month we will highlight some of the more interesting discussions happening on our Digit Forum (digit.in/forum). Head over and join our forum if you want quick answers to your queries from some of the geekiest Indians online. In case you love giving gyaan, or even if you love arguing with others, the Forum is the place you should be.

RTX for Laptops

<https://digit.in/laptoprtx>

Is NVIDIA trying to make profits from graphic cards for laptops without giving out the full details? Has NVIDIA benefitted from a lack of competition evident in the laptops segment?

TRAI DTH packs

<https://digit.in/traidth>

New regulations by TRAI allow DTH consumers to pick and choose every single channel they want to watch, and only pay for the chosen channels. Are all providers complying though?

DNA Profiling Bill

<https://digit.in/dnabill>

Is DNA profiling an effective tool to prevent crime and help law enforcement, or another method for surveillance and an intrusion into the private details of citizens? Forum members discuss.

Join the discussions at:

Web: geek.digit.in | Forum: geek.digit.in/community | Facebook: facebook.com/digitgeek