

GEEK CULTURE IS OUR WAY OF LIFE, AND ENCOMPASSES MOVIES, GAMES, COMICS, AND TRENDS FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

INSIDE

THIS MONTH IN CULT: Booman is already fed up of 5G, a rant about the proliferation of pop culture references in movies, card game versions of board games you love and the magic of composited photos.

Warrior Nun cast revealed

Netflix has been adapting comic books lately such as The Umbrella Academy and last year, they announced they are adapting Warrior Nun Areala, based on the manga series by Ben Dunn. While still under development, it has found its leading cast members.

WHAT'S NEW

James Gunn is back!

After several old edgy tweets surfaced from James Gunn's Twitter account, it didn't take Disney long to fire and disassociate themselves from him. By that time, Gunn had already finished writing the script for the upcoming GOTG Vol. 3 and was supposed to start production soon. However, the third film was left in limbo after his firing. While the entire cast of GOTG stood by Gunn to get him back to the project, Disney stood firm with its decision.

Since then Gunn took a break from social media until his next superhero project, Brightburn, was announced. It explores a different take on the origin story of Superman on what would happen if the alien turned evil. After a few months, DC announced that the next Suicide Squad movie as will be written and directed by Gunn. While many rejoiced this move, Deadline reported that Disney is going to rehire Gunn to finish what he started. Filming GOTG Vol. 3 will also make Gunn the only director in the MCU to have completed a trilogy. We can hardly wait for the Awesome Mixtape Vol. 3.

Sony's seven year Marvel projects

Looking at the incredible success of the recent Spider-man movies including Homecoming with Marvel Studios and the Oscar-winner Spider-man: Into the Spider-verse, Sony seems to be quite ambitious for the upcoming years. Sony Pictures has planned the next seven to eight years surrounding Spider-man in movies and TV shows. They are calling it 'Sony's Universe of Marvel Characters'. After the Disney and Fox merger, Sony is the only company out there with rights to Marvel characters. With plans already set for a Venom sequel along with Morbius, the Living Vampire starring Jared Leto, we are also going to see spin-offs around the characters depicted in Spider-verse.

They can't use Tom Holland's Spider-man from Marvel Studios, which begs the question - will another actor be cast as Spider-man by Sony? There is no clarity on this issue yet. While the competing studios have their own streaming services coming up, Sony has not announced any such plans yet. Instead, they see this as an opportunity to create more movies as the streaming services will be looking for more content.

Bumblebee sequel action

While the 1980's set Bumblebee movie got critical acclaim by focusing on a character driven story, it's sequel is likely going to be going back to the CGI-fest of Autobots vs Decepticons as seen in the older Michael Bay movies.

Pokemon cinematic universe

The first live-action Pokémon film, Detective Pikachu, might just expand later into a cinematic universe of its own, if the movie turns out to be in the box office. Our hopes are high as anything related to Pokémon is sure to have a big following.
