COLONY

Colony (not to be confused with The Colony) is set in the near future, unlike most of the other movies on the list. It is a dystopian future though, where humans are separated in walled enclosures. There is some kind of alien invasion that has taken place, but their presence is shadowy and in the background. Control over humans is maintained through mass surveillance by air-borne alien drones. There is an underground black market and a resistance of sorts. The story follows the efforts of a father to find his son who went missing during the invasion. The show stars Josh Holloway.

FREQUENCY

The premise of the series is similar to Cooper communicating to Murphy through the watch on the bookshelf in Interstellar. A father and daughter can speak to each other at different points of time in their lives, through HAM radio, hence the title of the series. Both of them are police officers, and set out to find a serial killer known as the Nightingale. Their combined efforts though, changes the timeline in unpredictable ways, similar to The Butterfly Effect, with the universe itself branching off into various timelines. Unfortunately, the series has been cancelled, but the single season is a captivating watch.

TRAVELERS

Travelers has an interesting premise that is a combination of Continuum and Altered Carbon.

The series starts with the deaths of five people. Close to the time of their deaths, their souls are swapped with the souls of people from the future sent back in time to prevent catastrophic events that take place in the future. There are cells of five people known as travelers, who are tasked with various missions, that they undertake in the skin of the people they have replaced. Their efforts are coordinated by an AI in the future, and all times they have to follow a strict set of protocols so that it does not negatively affect their timeline. Also, antimatter!

DARK

Like The OA, Dark is also similar to Stranger Things. There are eerie atmospheric horror elements, including flickering lights and birds suddenly falling dead from the sky. Multiple children start disappearing from a German town. Parts of the story take place in the present, but there are also parts that take place in the 1980s and the 1950s. Towards the end of the season, there are even sequences that take place in the future. There is a local cave system that hides some unexpected mysteries within it, and the teenagers travel to it on cycles (of course). Dark is a German show that is not dubbed in English, but subtitles are available.

THE OA

The story follows the titular character and explores her disappearance for seven years, over the course of which she was held captive and subjected to strange experiments. She disappears as a young girl, but when she returns she has regained her sight, but cannot even recognise her parents till she touches them. She survives jumping off a bridge which appears to be a suicide attempt, but there is more to it. It is similar to Stranger Things, but with an older bunch of kids. The OA, who calls herself the Original Angel forms a crack team, to use interdimensional portals to save other missing children, who have suffered the same fate as OA.

The show is based on the movie of the same name. A plague breaks out in 2017 that kills most of the population on the planet. The survivors live in a post apocalyptic future, faced with the extinction of the human race. A few surviving scientists come across an unfinished time machine, and successfully complete building it. They send a man back in time to prevent the plague from breaking out in the first place. The show follows the efforts of the chrononaut, Cole and a doctor, Raily to prevent the outbreak, over several time hops and alternative timelines. Due to the multiple hops and the episodes set in various time periods, the series is actually set across almost seven centuries.
