X-Men Dark Phoenix continues to sink

WHAT'S NEW

The evil never left Hawkins in Stranger Things

The final trailer for Stranger Things Season 3 recently dropped and it has been the most sinister so far. There is an absence of comedy, in general and tension is at an all-time high. The trailer ominously reveals that despite the team's best efforts in the previous season, the evil never left Hawkins, Indiana at all. The trailer also suggests that this evil would ultimately require another host, and it is heavily implied that this host would be Billy. Unfortunate, since he just became a lifeguard and all. Will Byers, who was a former resident of the 'upside-down' says, "What if he never left? What if we locked him out here with us?"

The tone of the trailer is morbid and instills a sense of doom. The new monster this season, as per the poster, is best described as colourful. However, from the trailer, we also learned that it is really bloody. And can apparently use a walkie-talkie. The inevitable storm, which is this season, will grace us July 4 on Netflix. <https://digit.in/StrangerThingsS3>

Watch out Avatar!

Disney wondered what they should do when they were only 50 million USD away from beating Avatar as the highest grossing movie of all time? The answer? Simple. Re-release the film with deleted scenes and an end-credit scene! That's right. Barely two months post the release of the original version of Avengers: End Game in April, super fans can now watch the film with renewed vigour and enjoy a set of previously unseen clips. Marvel Studios head, Kevin Feige has revealed that the re-release of Avengers: End Game with bonus scene is looming around the corner and could be there within a month! Avengers: End Game is currently sitting comfortably at a worldwide cumulative total of 2.743 billion USD, with Avatar at 2.788 billion USD. This re-release may very well push it over the top and effectively, beat Avatar's long-standing record. However, the release date may somewhat coincide with the upcoming release of Marvel's Spider-Man: Far From Home. Will this affect the box office numbers of Far From Home? We'll just have to wait and see. <https://digit.in/EndGameRe>

New Joker movie is R-Rated

It has been confirmed that the new DC solo film featuring the Joker will be an R-Rated film. Which makes perfect sense since the Joker's story is tragic and riddled with violence. This will be the first R-Rated film in the Batman Movie Universe. <https://digit.in/JokerR>

DC's Swamp Thing cancelled

Reportedly, DC Universe has cancelled Swamp Thing after just one episode. However, all 10 episodes slated for this season will still air so fans already vested in this series will still be able to watch a new episode every Friday. <https://digit.in/STcancel>
