KING GHIDORAH

King Ghidorah is a huge three headed dragon with two tails, and the arch nemesis of Godzilla. Ghidorah only comes to Earth after having destroyed life on many other planets. In fact, Ghidorah has previously been to the Earth as well, and is the reason why the dinosaurs became extinct. He is such a menace that all the other monsters typically forget that they are fighting, and team up to tackle him. Godzilla, Rodan, Mothra, Gorosaurus, Kumonga and all the other monsters of Earth origin have teamed up to defeat King Ghidorah. The only kaiju that Ghidorah has on his side is the cyborg, Gigan. In the Millenium series, the three headed Ghidorah is the defeated form, and he was originally actually an eight headed monster. In the Monsterverse, Ghidorah is an ancient rival to Godzilla, and can use gravity beams as a weapon.

KRALKATORRIK

At a thousand feet tall, this one is the second largest dragon on the list. The wings of this beast can block out the Sun. Kralkatorrik is a crystal dragon with a deadly breath that corrupts everything it touches - land, plants and creatures. He can create sandstorms, and his body can even turn into a sandstorm. Kralkatorrik belongs to an ancient and almost forgotten category of beings known as the Elder Dragons. These dragons devour all the magic in the realm, and then go into hibernation, biding their time till there is more magic in the world. Every time the Elder Dragons wake, they wreak death and destruction across the world. While the dragon was sleeping, the ridges on his back were so huge, that they were considered to be a mountain range. Kralkatorrik is the biggest of the Elder Dragons, and you can actually fight this beast in Guild Wars 2.

FIN FANG FOOM

Fin Fang Foom is the smallest dragon on this list, but he makes up for it in personality. On occasion, he even wears gigantic pants! Fin Fang Foom has a number of super abilities, including strength, flight, and telepathy. He is also a shapeshifter, and can grow in size when the situation demands it. Nobody knows the full extent or limit of his powers. He has died multiple times, but his spirit can possess another body, which he can then transform into his original form, and regain all his abilities, making him immortal. A figure similar to Fin Fang Foom appeared in the first Iron Man movie. Unfortunately, the arch nemesis of Fin Fang Foom is no more in the MCU, but the stories of the characters have changed a lot. One can only hope that Fin Fang Foom does make it to the MCU eventually.

MAG'LADROTH

Mag'ladroth, also known as the Void Dragon, is one of the most ancient beings in the Warhammer 40K universe. The lore is sparse, unclear and contradictory like most things 40K, but one thing is clear, it is ancient, powerful and terrifying. Taking the form of a cloud of dark light, it fed on stars. A shard of this ancient star god of the Necrons is buried on Mars, and locked away from most of the universe by the God Emperor of Mankind. Even getting near the dead remains of this beast is enough to cause hallucinations, madness and terror. It may be possible that the Void Dragon is not dead at all, and is merely sleeping within Mars. If it wakes up, it will be one of the most destructive forces in the universe. If the Void Dragon is truly alive, then it is the most powerful surviving C'tan, a being of nearly limitless power.
