

Tesco hacked

Hackers took control over Tesco's Twitter and scammed followers into sending them Bitcoin. <https://dgit.in/july19-38>

Temperature-tracking seals

Scientists have fitted Antarctic seals with trackers to monitor temperature levels in the ocean. <https://dgit.in/july19-39>

R/CONFUSING_PERSPECTIVE

Images that make you look a second time. These photos and videos typically have objects melting into other objects in the foreground or background, in strange and beautiful ways. Occasionally, there is an image that is shot that way on purpose.

R/CYBERPUNK

If you liked the visual aesthetic of Blade Runner, Akira or The Matrix, this subreddit is for you. Featuring artwork, photographs, screen grabs from video games, animations... you name it. If there is anything cyberpunk out there in the wild, it makes its way to this sub.

R/DARKSTOCKPHOTOS

Stock photos that are dark and full of terror. Some stock photos make you think what the photographer was thinking, and what kind of media agency or company would require this kind of stock photos. The best part about the subreddit is that the original watermarks are not removed.

R/DATAISBEAUTIFUL

From racing bar charts to innovative world maps, this subreddit is a collection of visualisations that effectively convey information by putting the data in fresh perspectives. The sub is extremely well-moderated - infographics are not allowed, and all posts have data sources.

R/GIFSTHATKEEPGIVING

Sort by hot, sit back, relax and keep falling forever down the rabbithole of gifs that keep giving.

R/INSANEPEOPLEFACEBOOK

This is one of those subs that you have to be careful about accessing at work. Or anywhere. Even if you are alone. The posts shows crazy and outrageous comments that people leave all over the internet - not just Facebook. If you want to know the strangest ideas and beliefs that are important and relevant to people, this is the place to go to. Anti vaxxers, dinosaur earthers, deep state conspiracies, bird deniers... you will find them all here, instead of having to subscribe to multiple subs.

R/MALICIOUSCOMPLIANCE

These are delicious stories of people following orders, instructions or requests, but ending up doing something damaging or counter-productive. Often, the said orders,

An image by mrainbowwj posted in r/cyberpunk instructions or requests are from overbearing, disagreeable or entitled people, so everyone gets to see karma at work.

R/MECHANICALKEYBOARDS

The first thing you will do after subscribing to this subreddit is throw away your keyboard. Then you will start wondering if the rectangular form factor makes you look too much like a T-Rex who just got a manicure. Your entire life will revolve around reaching the keyboard endgame, which is a custom form factor, custom keys, and a bunch of artisan keycaps.

R/NATUREWASMETAL

This are a bunch of prehistoric animals generally being badass. They could be devouring the young of other creatures, hunting down humans, fighting for their lives, or just taking a majestic stroll.

R/NOCONTEXTPICS

These are photos without captions or descriptions. The challenge is to see which of the posts have what it takes to rise to the top, without any additional context. For those who want to find out more, there is usually some explanation in the comments, either posted by the OP or someone else.

R/PIXELART

The sub is dedicated entirely to pixel art. It is surprising how much motion and emotion can be packaged within just a few pixels. The best thing about the subreddit is that step-by-step tutorials are regularly posted, which are surprisingly easy to go through and follow, so you can start creating pixel art of your own.

R/SHOWERTHOUGHTS

This is one of the more active subs on the list, and you might not want to subscribe if you do not like too many posts from the same sub on your feed. The sub is dedicated to all the strange thoughts that enter your brains when you are in the shower - or other places. Full of insights, both mundane and surprising.

R/TALESFROMTECHSUPPORT

If you understand system administration, even at a superficial level, this sub is gold. This is a documentation of all the insane demands that people have, and the weird ways in which they use their computers. Did you know that many people around the world have a habit of using the Recycle Bin as a folder, because files can be sent there with a single click? Additionally, the sub is totally SFW.

R/TRIPPINGTHROUGHTIME

This is a hilarious subreddit, where posters find some old timey photo, and then come up with contemporary explanations of what is going on. While most of the images used are renaissance paintings, there are also Egyptian hieroglyphics, Moghul miniatures, and illustrations from medieval bestiaries. 