

only works when users attempt to download your videos from the app itself, since there are third-party solutions to actually downloading blocked videos. So, be wary of what you upload.

TURN TIK TOK VIDEOS INTO GIFS

In addition to saving videos you stumble across on TikTok, you can also turn them into GIFs! All you are required to do is tap the share icon on the video you want to convert into a GIF, click 'Share as GIF' which will download this GIF-fied video to your gallery. You can now share this GIF via WhatsApp, Messenger, Twitter, text messages and more. However, keep in mind that the GIFs created in this manner do retain a TikTok watermark unlike other traditional TikTok videos that are downloaded.

TURN YOUR FAVOURITE VIDEO INTO A LIVE WALLPAPER

Stumble across the adorable puppy video on TikTok or landscape timelapse video on Tik Tok? You can turn this into a live wallpaper for your smartphone, pretty easily too. The process is ever-so-slightly different on different operating systems, however, the end result is the same. Note that if a user has disabled saving their TikTok videos, this feature will not work. For iOS devices, you have the ability to do this without using any third-party apps, by simply tapping on the share icon and then hitting 'Live Photo'. This live photo is then found in your gallery from where you can directly make it your wallpaper. For Android, you will need to install an app called Tik Tok Wall Picture (https:// digit.in/TikTokWall) available on the Play Store which will allow you to set a TikTok video as your live wallpaper in a similar manner as mentioned above.

TikTok live wallpaper

CONNECT WITH OTHER USERS WITH QR CODES

TikTok also has their own version of QR codes called TikTok Codes which makes it easier to connect with friends, brands, celebrities and more. To use this handy feature, you will need to visit your profile page where you will need to locate the TikTok Codes icon at the top of your profile. It looks like a QR code, so it shouldn't be difficult to locate. If you tap on it, you will be able to view your own code and share it with others.

If you want to scan someone's code or have access to a brand or celebrity's code, just tap on the scan button on the bottom of your TikTok code page and then point your device's camera to the code. You can also upload a picture of the code by simply swiping over to Photos. When the code has been scanned, you will be redirected to the TikTok user's page where you can view their videos and follow their page, if you want to.

RECORD WITHOUT HOLDING A BUTTON

It is extremely convenient to be able to record videos without having to hold a button constantly, especially in an app like TikTok. Fortunately, TikTok has the 'Timer' feature which once enabled, will record automatically after a few seconds have passed. In order to do this, go to your video capture screen and click on the timer icon on the right side of the screen. Then hit the Start Countdown button. You can drag the marker line across a timeline that appears to indicate exactly how long you want the app to keep recording. After this set period of time, the app will automatically stop recording the video. In case you want to pause recording, tap the stop button (the red circle) on the bottom of the screen, and to restart recording simply click on the timer icon again. If you want to end the recording before the timer runs out, tap the check mark on the bottom right of the recording screen.

TRANSITIONS AND EFFECTS GALORE

Pay close attention to TikTok trends, and chances are you will notice the abundance of transition effects used in videos. They may seem extremely complicated to pull off, but with some practice and a lot of time spent on YouTube watching TikTok transitions tutorials, you should be able to perfect a view and introduce a wow-factor in your very own videos. The slow-motion transition can look extremely appealing if done right, and this is easily achievable by switching into 'slow motion mode' after being on 'fast mode' for the first couple of seconds.

There's another simple one called the 'Head Spin' transition that goes exceedingly well with fast-paced, bass-y songs. All you need to do is turn your head 90 degrees to one side and start the video, turn it back to face straight, and then pause the video. Then you will need to turn your head again the opposite side, click on start and look straight again. This will produce a great effect that creates sort of a bewildering non-linear shot. Other well-known, simple transitions are the 'Throw', 'Ultra Spin', 'Phase 'n Colour', 'Slide' and more.

Video Star app allows you to clone yourself!

Another striking effect is one where you clone yourself multiple times. You will need to use a third-party app called Video Star to help you achieve this effect. In the app, you will need to select multiple recordings of yourself with the same backdrop or background, which can be layered on top of each other using the Multi-Layer Clip tool. The effect is pretty neat, and can be done convincingly after you have practiced a few times.

Think we missed any tips and tricks for TikTok? Write to us at editor@digit.in. 