

Star Wars hotel coming up soon...

To transport you to a galaxy far, far away... This Star Wars-themed hotel is named Galactic Starcruiser. <https://digit.in/sep19-31>

Smartphones aren't detrimental

A study shows that time spent on smartphones isn't actually harming teens' mental health. <https://digit.in/sep19-32>

BATMAN: THE GEAR

BATARANG

The Batarang are like throwing stars or shurikens, that are in the shape of a bat. There have been many variations over the years, and some of them can be folded up in the utility belt. In some early versions of the weapon, they actually behaved like boomerangs, and would return to Batman after striking the enemy.

ROCKET SHOES

Batman Beyond features some of the absolute best artwork and gadgets seen in all the series. In it, Batman borrows a trick from Iron Man and incorporates rocket thrusters in his boots. Combined with a wingsuit from the Batcape, this gives Batman the ability to fly. A variation of the boots also feature propellers that allow Batman to navigate quickly underwater.

BATCLAW

Similar to the Grapple Gun, the Batclaw is used to reel in objects towards oneself, and is seen in the Arkham games.

The weapon can be used in innovative ways depending on the situation, such as removing panels from vents, disarming enemies, or reeling in thugs to punch them in the face. An upgrade to the weapon had a variation with three projectiles.

BATCUFFS

Batcuffs are bat shaped handcuffs, and incorporate emerging material technologies, such as nylon embedded with diamonds. There have been many versions, and they are not just used to immobilise criminals. Batman can also throw the cuffs at the feet of fleeing thugs, and the cuffs automatically snap into the locked position, tripping the enemies.

EMP RIFLE

In The Dark Knight Rises, Batman sports an electro-magnetic pulse rifle, that can selectively take down electronic targets, as against an EMP grenade that takes out all the electronics in a radius. Batman has used it to disable lights in a tunnel during a chase sequence.

BATMAN TASER

Batman has many items in his utility belt that are designed to take down criminals in a non-lethal manner. One of these is the taser, but the tasing capabilities are not just in a discrete weapon. The utility belt, and at times even Batman's mask, have built in tasers that prevent anyone from taking them off him.

BATBOMBS

Batman has a tendency to avoid guns, but does have bombs in his arsenal. There have been many types of bombs used by Batman over the years, usually the non-lethal tactical variety. These include flashbang grenades and smoke grenades to prevent enemies from seeing the movements of Batman.

BAT SPRAY

In the 1966 movie, Batman randomly gets attacked by a great white shark while climbing a rope ladder dangling from a helicopter. He asks Robin to throw down Shark Repellent Spray, and stored in the helicopter are repellent sprays for whales, manta rays and barracudas. While it may seem like an oddly specific thing to have, it goes to show that Batman thinks ahead.

Phone Cases

You can get officially licensed phone cases as well as power banks for a range of smartphone models from Macmerise. <https://digit.in/bmcases>

Socks

You can get three pairs of Justice League socks featuring the logos of Batman, Flash and Superman for ₹399 from LBB. <https://digit.in/bmsocks>

USB Drives

McSidRazz has Joker and Batman collectible USB flash drives. The drives are of 16GB capacity. <https://digit.in/bmusb>