features a tray which is hydrophobic and also comes equipped with a weight sensor to detect when your doggo has made a visit to the device. Once the dog steps away, it automatically rises to clear the waste away.

GOPRO FETCH

Want to view the world from your pupper's perspective? The GoPro Fetch may be the perfect pet gadget for you. Arguably, you could also just get a regular GoPro and fix it to your dog's back using some kind of prop-ping up apparatus, but it may not prove as effective as the GoPro Fetch. The GoPro Fetch is a customisable harness which ensures that your canine is comfortable and is compatible with any GoPro camera. The GoPro Fetch is also waterproof and is fully adjustable. So, you don't have to worry about it fitting your doggo since it can pretty much be modified to fit any sized dog, right from a Chihuahua to a Tibetan Mastiff.

IFETCH

The iFetch is a great gadget for any pet owner who has become too jaded by playing fetch on loop with their pets. It launches a small tennis ball anywhere between 10 to 30 feet from the launcher and even houses a slot in which the pet can be trained to drop the balls it has fetched. The company who created this nifty pet gadget also has a range of other pet devices that allow owners to offload some of the tasks or duties pet parents have.

WHISTLE GO EXPLORE

The Whistle GO Explore is a handy and well-built health and location tracker for your pets that supports real-time location tracking via its app. The device also sends out escape alerts to the owner's smartphone when the pet exits a designated safe zone. It also boasts a bunch of other utilitarian features such as an astounding 20 days of battery life on a single charge, 24-Hour timeline log, fitness tracker and goals for your pets, sleep and scratch tracker, custom reminders, water-resistance and more. There's also a built-in light in the device that can be turned on using the app, in case you want to quickly spot your pet or have it make its way back home safely when it has gotten dark outside.

PAVLOVIAN PUPPY POTTY TRAINER

The Pavlovian Puppy Potty Trainer employs Russian physiologist, Ivan Petrovich Pavlov's famous conditioning trick to train little puppies into doing their business right. It is essentially a mat with hidden sensors which are triggered when the dog uses the mat to do their business. This causes a holder to automatically dispense a treat to provide your pup with some positive reinforcement for a job well done. The instant gratification should work its charm into teaching your dog where the right place to 'go' is after a few days.

POOCH SELFIE

It can be quite a challenge to hold your canine's attention while clicking a selfie, and you may often get shots where your dog is looking elsewhere, making it a pretty Instagram-unworthy shot. Pooch Selfie attachment is a simple yet powerful gadget. It is essentially an attachment for your smartphone which can clip on your dog's favourite toy slightly above the camera to keep their attention. You'll be clicking perfect Instagram shots with your fur-babies soon enough with this simple but novel attachment.

AQUAPAW

Bath time for pets can be distressing, especially if your pet is extremely hydrophobic. Aquapaw is a wearable sprayer/scrubber that can mask bath time as loving pets. The device can be turned on and off by squeezing your hand, giving pet owners full control of the water flow. It can be utilised by attaching it to a tap inside the house or a water hose in your backyard or veranda. The pressure is high enough that it will penetrate fur to provide a thorough cleaning, but still low enough to be comfortable for your fur-babies.
