FOR IOS USERS, THE MOST EXCITING THING ABOUT THE OCTOBER EVENTS is perhaps not the launch of a new lineup of devices, but the OS upgrade, which can make every iPhone feel like a brand new one. This time there are a ton of new features, and we have rounded up the most useful ones right here.

HEY SIRISH

If you want to check out the new local sound-ing Siri voice, go to Settings > Accessibility > VoiceOver > Speech > Voice > English (India) > Rishi.

BOOST YOUR BATTERY LIFE

One of the bad habits that ruins battery life is keeping the phone plugged in overnight. iOS 13 has a feature that predicts when you are going to wake up, and stops charging the battery beyond 80 percent. To turn the feature on, go to Settings > Battery > Battery Health and toggle Optimised Battery Charging. However, this is a measure that can be iffy, especially if you have unpredictable sleep timings. It is better to invest in a wall charger with a programmable timer for a few hundred bucks to achieve better results.

LOW DATA MODE

This is a new setting that allows you to limit the amount of data use, and can be particularly useful towards the end of the billing cycles of your service provider. Go to Settings > Mobile Data Options and toggle Low Data Mode. Keep watch on the kind of apps you use, as some applications aggressively download data despite the phone being in low data mode.

SPEED UP COPY PASTING

This is an incredibly useful and intuitive new gesture, which makes you think why it hasn't been implemented for ten years. After selecting a chunk of text, pinch with three fingers to copy it. When you want to paste it, simply do a reverse pinch with three fingers.

MAKE EXCEPTIONS TO DND

iOS 13 now supports allowing a selection of your contacts to get through to you, even when the Do Not Disturb mode is enabled. There are two ways to go about doing this, as a group or individually. For the group approach, go through your contact list, and tap on the ones that you want to take calls for even in DND mode, then, tap on Add to Favourites. Now go to Settings > Do Not Disturb > Allow Calls

From > Favorites. You can also allow calls from people individually, without adding them to the Favorites group. To do this, go to the contact, then Edit > Ringtone and toggle on Emergency Bypass. You can also set a custom and distinct ringtone for each person in the contact list, so you know exactly who is calling.

This is a really useful feature that lets you capture entire web pages, and even save long articles as PDFs which you can later pursue at your leisure. To do this, capture the screenshot as you regularly would, using the volume up button and the side button, or the belly button and the side button. Then simply tap on the Full Page tab. You can add annotations anywhere on the page before saving. You can also export the file as
