WHAT'S NEW

'The Mandalorian' becomes the most in-demand streaming show

Disney+ original series, the Mandalorian, has taken the world by storm and became the most in-demand streaming series to ever exist. Parrot Analytics, a company that provides statistics dealing with audience demand for TV content, revealed that the Disney+ show has beaten the record which was previously held by Netflix's Stranger Things for being the most-streamed TV series. The Mandalorian's newly-achieved record marks the end of Stranger Thing's 21-week run at the top of the list. The show featuring the internet sensation dubbed 'Baby Yoda' had over 100 million demand expressions in the week between November 17 and 23. This is triple of what the show achieved in its debut week. The maximum Stranger Things ever achieved in this regard was 81 million demand expressions. Parrot Analytics also divulged that The Mandalorian is 31.9 times more in-demand than the average TV series. On the list of the most in-demand streaming shows DC Universe's Titans, The Crown, Castle Rock, Lucifer and The Man in the High Castle follow the Mandalorian and Stranger Things. <https://dgit.in/MandoBeatsRecords>

Upcoming anime streaming platform will focus on retro classics

Entering the 'streaming wars' soon is RetroCrush, an anime streaming platform, that will specifically focus on content surrounding retro classics such as Fist of the North Star, Street Fighter 2, Lum, Card Captor Sakura and, presumably, more. The new platform was announced on RetroCrush's official Twitter account and it comes on the heels of the Anime convention, Anime NYC 2019. RetroCrush began as a YouTube channel that featured clips of classic anime. Delving further into this niche, the company announced that its

'big plans' for 2020 will focus on the 'Golden Age of Anime'. However, existing services such as Crunchyroll and Funimation already feature classics such as the Dragon Ball franchise. Amazon Prime has Robotech while Netflix has Attack on Titan. It will be interesting to see how they stack up against their competitors in streaming field. <https://dgit.in/RetroCrush>
