UPCOMING ANIME 2020

Here are some of the shows to watch out for in the first half of 2020.

Toaru Kagaku no Railgun T

The third season of A Certain Magical Railgun will hopefully be better than the last few seasons in the "A Certain Magical" series. While the initial offerings of the franchise were pretty good, the recent offerings have been lacking. Here's hoping the trend breaks with this one.

Magia Record: Mahou Shoujo Madoka ♫ Magica Gaiden

Mahou Shoujo Madoka is easy to shrug off as a child's magical girl show, but it took everyone by surprise with its depth. Nobody expected that kind of feels from a magical girl show. This time around, the show is based on a spin-off mobile game based on the original show.

Re:Zero kara Hajimeru Isekai Seikatsu 2

The first season of Re:Zero took the isekai concept and attempted to mix things up, and even succeeded to an extent. If you've watched the movie Edge of Tomorrow, the premise is the same. Natsuki Subaru, has the ability to set a save point for himself, allowing him to return to that point in time should he die.

Yahari Ore no Seishun Love Comedy wa Machigatteiru. Kan

The show mockingly calls itself a rom-com but is much deeper than that once you get through the surface, with a refreshing MC who stands out without becoming completely unlikable. It's been a while since the second season, let's see if anything concludes in the third.

a 1960s anime, only this time around, with studio MAPPA's gorgeous visuals. There are 24 episodes, and it's got a pretty grim and gory story (involving a lot of body parts), but the storytelling is great, and so is the premise.

SPRING 2019 ANIME

(APRIL - JUNE)

Kimetsu no Yaiba

Ufotable's Kimetsu no Yaiba is arguably the most popular anime of the year, thanks in no small part to Ufotable's amazing visuals and animation. The story revolves around revenge and demon hunting, and the whole thing is just further complemented by the unique art-style it borrows from the manga.

Kaguya-sama wa Kokurasetai: Tensai-tachi no Renai Zunousen

Your rom-com (romantic comedy) for the season, Kaguya-sama is the story of two "prideful geniuses", who are definitely in love with each other, but neither of them will confess to the other, because they both think it's a sign of weakness.

Dororo

The season's sleeper hit, the dark fantasy themed Dororo is the remake of

One Punch Man 2

The second season of One Punch Man had plenty worried because of a different studio picking the show up. While
