

GEEK CULTURE IS OUR WAY OF LIFE, AND ENCOMPASSES MOVIES, GAMES, COMICS, AND TRENDS FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

THIS MONTH IN CULT:

Boo-Man has a few things to say about the new iPhone SE. Then we learn about the various techniques used by filmmakers in movies like 1917, The Irishman and The Lighthouse. Also, we've got a few thrillers for you to binge on during this lockdown.

Minecraft gets a Manga adaptation

The iconic game, Minecraft is getting an official manga series in Japan named Minecraft: Journey to the World's End. The new manga will debut in the May issue of the CoroCoro magazine. <https://dgit.in/Minecraft-Manga>

WHAT'S NEW

Expect some Disney movies to skip the theatres

In a recent interview with Barron's, Bob Iger, Executive Chairman of The Walt Disney Company, divulged that the studio will possibly be sending multiple delayed films straight to Disney+, the company's nascent streaming service. The studio has revamped its release slate for 2020 with big-budget films such as Black Widow and Mulan, as well as films it acquired from Fox (such as New Mutants) being postponed from their previously-scheduled dates, early in 2020. Disney also unveiled a new release plan spanning a couple of years. As part of this release plan announcement, the studio revealed that it is sending Artemis Fowl straight to Disney+, making it a Disney+ exclusive film. The first one, but certainly not the last, according to Iger's comments. The ex-CEO of Disney said that while a few films will also be directly released on Disney+, the "big tentpole Disney films" will await theatrical release spots. In the interview, Iger also spoke about the company's decision to release certain Disney films faster than expected onto Disney+, with some examples being Frozen 2 and Onward.

<https://dgit.in/Direct2Disney>

The Mandalorian docuseries is on its way

The second season of the wildly-popular, The Mandalorian is not due until October 2020. However, fans yearning for their fix of Mando saying "This is the way" or moreover, The Child, fondly referred to as Baby Yoda, can resort to watching the upcoming Disney+ docuseries surrounding the Mandalorian. The streaming platform recently dropped the first trailer of the documentary series dubbed

'Disney Gallery: The Mandalorian' which looks to be chock-full of geeky content. The docuseries is slated to stream every Friday, beginning May the Fourth and will have eight parts. Each part will dive deep into different content such as BTS footage, unseen clips, interviews, and roundtable discussions. Executive Producer Jon Favreau leads the eight-part docuseries and says that the team had a great experience shooting the show and they are looking forward to sharing it with ardent fans. The documentary series will no doubt cater to a niche audience, however, it is a breath of fresh air.

<https://dgit.in/MandoDocuseries>

One Piece to debut on Netflix

Arguably, the most popular anime and manga in the world, One Piece is finally making its way to Netflix on June 12. The streaming service will feature the first two arcs – East Blue and Alabasta, which amount to 130 episodes. <https://dgit.in/OnePieceNetflix>

One Punch Man live-action film in the works

Beloved manga and anime series, One Punch Man is getting a live-action film adaptation which will be written by Venom writers, Scott Rosenberg and Jeff Pinker for Sony Pictures. We're not quite sure how we feel about this... <https://dgit.in/OPMLiveAction>

The Batman gets a new release date

Fans knew that Matt Reeves' The Batman would most likely be delayed with production coming to a halt in March. As expected, the new release date has finally been revealed and the movie will release on October 21, 2021 instead of June 25. <https://dgit.in/BatmanOct2021>