MINDBENDING MOVIES TO BINGE ON

Best psychological thriller, horror, drama movies to watch in your free time

Rahul Chettiyyar | feedback@digit.in

With the extension of the lockdown and the abundance of free time, we are sure that your sleep schedule has changed slightly. Actually, "slightly" is a bit of a stretch. Let's be honest. It has changed to something like 4 AM to 1 PM. To pass the time, one would not want to watch family movies or comedies or romcoms at night. Darkness and isolation call for something depressing, thrilling, horrifying or thought-provoking. So, we have compiled a list of some of the best psychological thrillers, horror and drama movies for your nocturnal pupils and deranged minds to feast upon. In fact, even when the lockdown ends, we absolutely recommending watch these films since they are some of the best films in the genres mentioned above. Note: Most of these movies are for adults only and are in no particular order.

REQUIEM FOR A DREAM (2000)

<https://digit.in/RFAD>
Requiem for a Dream is an American psychological drama film based on four characters who are affected by drug addiction. The film focuses on how drugs affected their physical and emotional states when they took it too far. It sheds light on a lot of real-world aspects such as sex work, drug trafficking and the consequences of living in the past. The movie has got fantastic visuals and a goosebump-inducing soundtrack. It is one of the masterpieces of this generation and is definitely not for children.

THE BIRDMAN OR (THE UNEXPECTED VIRTUE OF IGNORANCE) (2014)

<https://digit.in/Birdman>

Birdman is one of those open-ended films that leaves a weird after-taste in your mouth. The film follows the story of a fading cinema superhero whose past personality has come back to haunt him. With unique storytelling, comedy, master-class cinematography, upbeat music and visual effects, it is no doubt that this Oscar winner is a must-watch.
