The world's having it tough right now, with the pandemic causing a global lockdown. While we may have it lucky and have the luxury of being able to work from home, it's not the same for the majority of our country. Many other working groups, such daily-wage earners, migrant workers, labourers and more, are having a difficult time due to the lockdown. Furthermore, we've got essential workers risking their lives everyday to treat and service those in need.

In such situations, it's up to the government and us to lend a helping hand when and where we can to those who need it and to those who're doing their best to keep us safe and healthy. To that end, there are several initiatives that both NGOs and the government have started to help the many groups that are in need during this pandemic.

Here are few NGO initiatives that you can support right now –

MCKS FOOD FOR THE HUNGRY FOUNDATION

MCKS Food for the Hungry Foundation Delhi is an NGO that specialises in food distribution, especially during such trying times. They're currently working to feed those who are stranded and in need of food in the capital. To that end they've expanded the capacity of their kitchen and have delivered over 4 lakh cooked meals so far! That's in addition to distributing over 3 lakh food care packages containing bread, biscuits and more.

They've partnered up with organisations including Realme, the Max India Foundation, Tupperware, and more to help accomplish this. Zomato Feeding India has already delivered ration kits to over 4 lakh families across 38 cities in the country.
