Are there really borders?

When we see earth from space it looks as if all the continents and countries have amalgamated and it's often hard to single out the continents, let alone countries. The mighty power never drew any line between his creations because he created the Earth in a sense that here every creature will find affection, harmony, bond and will be equally important. But ironically it remained a distant dream. We had, have and crave that we will not carry on with boundaries. What are boundaries? For separation or managing the world! The world faces so many problems just because of this line which is irrational. Man is an unparalleled living creature on Earth, and he always seeks his happiness, and this behaviour drives him to the problem. We call Earth as Mother Earth and we divide it! Can you divide your mother into so many halves and state that this part is yours and that's mine? No we can't because she gives us life. In a similar way, mother earth bestows us with countless blessings! Boundaries are not merely lines. But lines of trouble!!

doing her yoga in the kitchen on the countertops.

Despite all this, the folks haven't stopped gaming. Manish finally let go of his Monster Hunter World addiction and is now building up an even "healthier" addiction for Path of Exile.

Dhriti is back into the soon-to-be-banned PUBG Mobile and Aditya is still in Warframe. Mithun has gone retro / semi-retro and is playing city building games such as Zeus: Master of Olympus and Civ VI. Robert hasn't been seen gaming for a while, all we know is that he's been tinkering with some secret project that the rest of the peeps haven't been privy to.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH

"Please don't put "quote of the month" as quote of the month"

— Robert

One of the upsides of being locked up with plenty of gadgets is that you ... get to know the gadgets ... intimately. We've seen weird manifestations of these with everyone. Aditya has been fidgeting with various pieces from his collection of tabletop games. Manish swears that he can hear a smartwatch ticking and Mithun is drawing abstract pieces of art with a 3D doodler pen. The rest of the team have been holding back their criticism of his "abstract art" but deep down, even he knows that it is absolute garbage. So to not break his heart, they chose to keep their silence and let the whole world know instead through this here page. Cruelty hath no limits. 📌

We've been shooting a lot of videos these days out of our homes. And to do that, we've have to make a few ... dammit, we've had to change things up altogether. We've got tripods, cameras, lights, basically the whole shebang in our rooms. At peak times, each of our rooms get so crowded with hardware and equipment that we end up sleeping elsewhere. Mithun has been sleeping on the floor for a good week or two every month as his bed lays littered with products. Dhriti no longer has a hall for herself since that's a mini-studio now. We hear she's been
