New Spider-Woman movie in the works?

Olivia Wilde is reportedly going to be co-writing and directing a new Spider-Woman movie for Sony. We don't know for sure if it's Spider-Woman, but Olivia Wilde tweeting the spider emoji definitely counts as confirmation.

WHAT'S NEW

Major reveals and teasers at the DC FanDome

This month, we had a free virtual convention from DC, the DC FanDome. The convention showcased a plethora of content with announcements from WB Games, Film, TV and Comics. We also got news of upcoming feature films, games and TV series, which includes The Batman, Wonder Woman 1984, Zack Snyder's Justice League, SHAZAM!, Black Adam, Watchmen and The Suicide Squad, to name just a few. The convention was split into two days, with the first day taking place on August 22, and the second day with the side events to take place on September 12.

Some of the major announcements include a new trailer for Wonder Woman 1984, which gives us our first look at the Cheetah. Then of course, you've got the Snyder Cut for the Justice League, something fans have been clamouring about for years. WB Games revealed Gotham Knights, where Batman is no more, and it's not up to the bat family to keep Gotham safe. You get to play as Red Hood, Nightwing, Robin, and Bat Girl. Possibly more. We also had a teaser for Black Adam, something we've known Dwayne Johnson to be working on. This is the primary antagonist for Shazam, for those wondering. Another game reveal, from Rocksteady this time, the same folk behind the fantastic Batman Arkham series. It's a Suicide Squad game though, and they're killing the Justice League apparently. Finally, a trailer for The Batman, with Robert Pattinson taking on the role of the billionaire playboy/caped vigilante.

The main villain of the movie appears to be the Riddler, but we think we definitely saw the Penguin in there somewhere. There were plenty more announcements, but we'd need a lot more space to cover everything. There's still another day of the convention in September, and it's free for all, so check it out.

Extended Netflix Intro

The iconic Netflix "ta-dum" sound we're all familiar with doesn't work too well for theatres. That is until they hired Hans Zimmer to extend and spruce it up to make it as epic as possible. Check it out, you won't regret it.

Dragon's Dogma trailer revealed

Capcom's 2012 RPG, Dragon's Dogma, is an underrated gem of a game. Netflix have been working on an anime adaption for a while now, and the trailer is finally out. Hopefully, this will give the game the attention it deserves as well.

Powerpuff Girls live action series

A Powerpuff Girls live-action TV series is apparently in the works at The CW. We don't quite know how to feel about that. From what we know, it will follow the girls in their 20s, unlike the cartoon, in which they're still kids.
