

DIY Cyberquad

A YouTuber, Rich Rebuilds, has built his own DIY version of the Tesla Cyberquad. <http://dgit.in/sep20-71>

Smart home taken to court

Attorneys and law enforcement officials can put your virtual home assistant in the hot seat. <http://dgit.in/sep20-72>

FAMOUS FICTIONAL SWORDS

If your favorite sword did not make it to the list, do write in to tell us all about it.

Aditya Madanapalle |
aditya@dgit.in

ANDURIL

One of the most famous swords from the Tolkien Legendarium, it was originally called Narsil and wielded by Elendil, and shattered by Sauron. Isildur, Elendil's son, used a broken sword to cut off the finger with the ring from Sauron's hand. In the third age, Aragorn reforged the sword and called it Anduril, or the Flame of the West, and used it to fight Sauron again.

ASHBRINGER

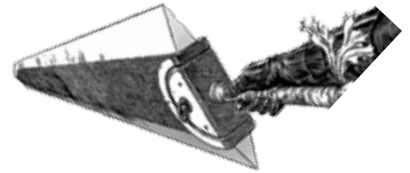

Ashbringer was a mysterious sword that was the subject of intense speculation by the Warcraft community who even took apart the code of the game in an attempt to find a hidden quest that would reward the item. There was no such quest. Alexandros Mograine was the original wielder, and after it's death, it got corrupted, which was a suitably epic lootable item.

ATLANTIAN SWORD

The Atlantean Sword is a weapon wielded by Arnold Schwarzenegger as Conan in Conan the Barbarian and Conan the Destroyer. The sword belonged to some long forgotten king who is entombed with it. Conan stumbles into the tomb while being chased by wolves, retrieves the sword, and uses it to break his shackles before killing all the wolves.

DRAGON SLAYER

This is one of the largest swords wielded by a human in a manga or anime series. The Dragon Slayer from Berserk is the signature weapon of Guts, the protagonist and is just a massive hunk of metal that is as much a club as it is a sword. The sword was made by the blacksmith Godot, with the specific task of killing a dragon, which is how the sword gets its name.

EXCALIBUR

Excalibur is the legendary sword of King Arthur, but depending on which version of the story it is, it is not the one that Arthur retrieves from the stone to prove his lineage, that sword is actually called Caliburn. The sword that Sir Gawain received from the Lady in the Lake is called Galatine, but in some versions Arthur receives it in the same way.

HATTORI HANZO'S SWORD

In Quentin Tarantino's Kill Bill movies, the Japanese swordsmith Hattori Hanzo comes out of retirement to make a special commission for the Bride. He uses all his years of experience, and makes the best blade he has ever made. While handing over the sword, He famously tells Kiddo, "if on your journey, you should encounter God, God will be cut."