Letters of the Month

Dear Team Digit,

I am reading Digit right from the beginning. But never opted for long term subscriptions. In the beginning, I used to grab the copy from the bookshop "PAI & Co", which no longer exists. After they closed the shop, I used to search and find out my copy from somewhere or other. I was happy with this mode of getting the magazine. For more than 15 years, maybe, I used to buy online. Digit also remembers to send me the link and sometimes calls me.

Even when Digit covered all technologies, it was primarily a computer magazine at that time. I was happy that it made me sort of a computer expert among all my colleagues.

I was elated when I was also among the people chosen by Digit for the cover of 9th Anniversary edition in June 2010. The theme was "Celebrating You", which was about the regular readers. I don't know how you got hold of the pictures of the regular readers. But I know that it might have taken a lot of effort to design such a cover.

The magazine I got this month started from page 33 even though it had all the booklets and DVD. I received it on 9th September 2020. That day itself I have sent an email describing this. I expected that you will be doing something this month itself.

But you defeated me by delivering the magazine on 12th September. That is, in the same week. You proved the meaning of the June 2010 edition of Digit.

Thank you.

—S Sethukumar.

Dear Sethukumar,
Thank you so much for your message and for being a loyal Digit reader. Your comments mean a lot to me.

You may want to subscribe to our digital version of the magazine to save yourself the hassle of going to find it.

Hello,

I have been following Digit since 2005 but for the first time I am writing to you, or for that matter to anyone from the Digit family. I am a huge fan of you all. I wanted to thank you for your Sep 2020 column "Cancel complain culture". For the past few weeks I had been thinking about the negativity which has enveloped us especially after the COVID-19 outbreak. I was thinking about how I could contribute in changing this so as to make a difference in my life and of those around me. And today when I opened the Digit mag I was very excited reading your column talking about complain culture and all the negativity. Your column showed me the way that we can remove all this negativity by simple things, like supporting startups or maybe congratulating someone on their small achievements, or celebrating our small steps for change. I hope everyone of us contributes in this way and shows that "when the cause is worthy enough, we can all get together and cancel complain culture".

A huge thanks to you

Btw do you people at digit have any device which captures the readers thoughts.

—Syed Adil Gilani

Hi Syed, we are so thankful to people like you who choose to bring positive change to the world. Thank you for supporting us and everyone else around you as well. Sadly, we don't yet have a device to capture reader thoughts, but it's nice to know that we do manage to do just that from time-to-time – because it's good to know we still connect with all of you, at least sometimes. Please do keep writing in and sharing feedback with us.

—Robert
