CUSTOMISATION IS ONE OF THE CORE TRAITS OF THE ANDROID OPERATING SYSTEM

that makes it appealing to its varied user base. Most staunch Android users will often cite Android's innate customisation abilities as one of the foremost reasons that they prefer Android over iOS. The age-old ability to rearrange icons, set widgets, customise the lock screen, sideload apps, and others are a big plus for a lot of users over iOS's rigid interface (before iOS 14 added widgets, of course). However, a lot of smartphone manufacturers apply their own 'skins' or UI over Android, so a Samsung smartphone will look and feel different than say, a Xiaomi device. If you dislike the UI of your smartphone, Android even allows you to customise this with the use of launchers which are downloadable from the Google Play Store or via APK.

Launchers are incredibly powerful apps that are capable of overhauling the entire appearance of your smartphone's software, to better suit individualistic tastes and preferences, all without rooting. There are numerous launchers available, each catering to a different use case. You can make your phone look almost identical to stock Android devices or even opt for something more flashy. The best launchers are capable of providing a complete makeover to your smartphone by changing icons, themes, and even adding functionalities such as smart folders and search assistants. In this article, we enlist some tips and tricks for three of the most popular Android launchers – Nova launcher, Microsoft launcher and Smart Launcher 5.

NOVA LAUNCHER

launchers, if not the most popular, with a rich array of features and fluid navigation. It has been the go-to launcher for power users for a few years now and has always been revered for the sheer amount of customisation options it offers. The launcher is constantly updated with brand new features and a lot of these are completely free of charge. However, to use some more advanced features, you'll need to upgrade to Nova Launcher Prime for ₹99 on the Play Store,
