WHAT'S NEW

HBO beats Netflix in the Emmy Awards race

HBO pulverised Netflix at the 72nd Emmy Awards this year despite Netflix having a record 160 nominations overall, and HBO only having 107 nominations in contrast. HBO managed to convert an impressive 30 nominations into wins, while Netflix came in second with 21 wins, which is impressive in its own right as well. HBO's wins could be attributed to the successes of series such as Watchmen and Succession. However, Netflix's Canadian sitcom, Schitt's Creek provided ample competition as well and made Emmy history by sweeping up all the major Comedy categories awards. Nevertheless, HBO's domination over Netflix is commendable especially since it doesn't lean on shows such as

Game of Thrones or Veep anymore. HBO secured the win for best drama series (Succession), best limited series (Watchmen), best variety talk series (Last Week Tonight with John Oliver), every lead acting award in drama and limited series categories, and even picked up the surprising yet deserving win for Euphoria actor, Zendaya, making her the youngest actor in a drama series winner. Watchmen scored 11 wins in total and brought home more Emmys than any other show in 2020. <http://dgit.in/HBONetflixEmmys>

Henry Cavill not participating in Snyder Cut reshoots

The Snyder Cut of Justice League has been cleared for a 2021 release on HBO Max as a four-episode limited series. Before the release, however, Zack Snyder and Warner Bros. are planning on beefing up the film slightly with a series of reshoots scheduled in October. The Hollywood Reporter revealed that the reshoots will run for approximately one week and will bring back Ben Affleck as Batman, Gal Gadot as Wonder Woman as well as Ray Fisher as Cyborg. Reportedly, Henry Cavill, who plays Superman in the DC Extended Universe, will not be participating in any of the additional reshoots for the Snyder Cut of Justice League. Additionally, Jason Momoa, who plays Aquaman, also isn't named on the call sheet for the reshoot, which suggests that he may also not be involved. <http://dgit.in/NoReshootsForCavill>
