The best new and upcoming TV shows on Netflix, Prime Video and Disney+Hotstar

Mark your calendars

Andrew Lu | andrew@digit.in

With the world still in the grips of an unprecedented pandemic, a lot of us have now shifted to working from home. So, what do you do with that free time then? Well, catch up on some much-needed TV watching, and we've got a list of some of the best shows that have just started airing or will hit screens soon. Most of the shows mentioned in this list are and will be available to stream on various OTT platforms like Netflix, Disney+Hotstar and Prime Video, so don't worry about missing out on any of these highly-anticipated shows.

So, without further ado, let's dive into our list of new and upcoming shows that you should keep an eye out for.

September 3 and should be streaming on Disney+Hotstar as well.

RAISED BY WOLVES

Ridley Scott makes his television directorial debut with the highly mysterious and gorgeous looking Raised by Wolves. A sci-fi extravaganza, the first trailer for the show gives us a glimpse at the main plot of the series. Raised by Wolves follows the lives of a group of human children who are being raised by two androids on an alien planet. Humanity has been destroyed in a horrific and tragic war and all that's left are these children. The show looks fantastic and given Ridley's track record, even if the show has a few narrative issues, you can be assured that it'll be damn good. The show premieres on HBO MAX on

LOVECRAFT COUNTRY

With the first episode premiering on Sunday, August 16, Lovecraft Country is a show that any horror/sci-fi fan should definitely check out. An HBO production, Lovecraft Country is based on the book of the same name and sees sci-fi author Atticus Finch unravelling the mystery of his heritage all while fending off Lovecraftian beasts and the threat of racism in the 60s. The first episode had us on the edge of our seats, and as you would expect, has the polish and quality of HBO's production. The show is currently streaming on Disney+Hotstar with a new episode premiering every Sunday.
