

GEEK CULTURE IS OUR WAY OF LIFE, AND ENCOMPASSES MOVIES, GAMES, COMICS, AND TRENDS FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

THIS MONTH IN CULT:

We've got even more mindbending movies for you to binge on. After that, we rant about biased movie reviews in media. As usual, Boo-Man is upset about something, what could it be? Finally, check out the latest trends in Hot or Not.

Netflix cancelled the 30-day free trial in India

Netflix has officially removed the 30-day free trial subscription offer in India (and even in the US). Instead, the company is now planning to offer a free trial of its service to everyone in India for a weekend without users having to sign up at all. <http://dgit.in/netflix-freetrial>

WHAT'S NEW

PS5 to come with Netflix, Spotify, Disney+, and more on launch

The PS5 will be shipping with an assortment of entertainment apps such as Netflix, Disney+, Spotify, YouTube, Twitch, Crunchyroll and Apple TV Plus at launch, all of which are directly integrated into the PS5's dedicated remote control. Sony confirmed this in a recent blog post and even stated that apps such as Amazon Prime Video and Hulu will be added to the collection sometime in the near future. Additionally, some of these entertainment apps will also come with integrated experiences. For example, users can play their favourite Spotify playlist in the background when they're gaming.

The apps will be slotted neatly into a dedicated media entertainment space next to the Game home screen on the PlayStation 5. The dedicated remote control will allow users to navigate between channels, adjust volume levels, and the power settings of compatible TVs. Unfortunately, the remote will not be included with the console, but users will most probably be able to buy it on popular e-commerce websites. The PS4 also provided integration with entertainment apps, but with the PS5 the experience is slightly more streamlined owing to the dedicated streaming services buttons and the separate Media entertainment space.

<http://dgit.in/ps5entertainment>

Here's the first look of Tom Holland in the Uncharted movie

The development of an Uncharted movie, based on the popular franchise of games, has been ongoing for years now. After having cycled through multiple directors and cast members within that timespan, Sony Pictures finally fixated on Tom Holland to don the iconic role of Nathan Drake, under

Ruben Fleischer's direction. As the filming process is now closer to being complete, we have gotten our first look at our live-action professional treasure hunter and some cool set photos. The image, shared by Tom himself, features his version of Nathan Drake in full-costume, standing atop what looks like a destroyed, ancient structure. Although there is not much to go by, you can see him sporting the distinctive henley and cargo pants combo, with leather pistol holsters on either side.

<http://dgit.in/uncharted>

Jared Leto to return as The Joker in Snyder's JL

According to reports, Jared Leto will be reprising his role as the Clown Prince of Crime a.k.a. The Joker in Zack Snyder's Justice League. The film is slated to premiere on HBO Max sometime in 2021.

<http://dgit.in/letojoker>

Jon Favreau open to idea of 'The Mandalorian' film

In a recent interview with Variety, creator Jon Favreau said he may consider turning the series into a movie. He also said that he is in "no rush" to do so, but he and his team are definitely open to it.

<http://dgit.in/mandomovie>

Homelander to turn into a "homicidal maniac"

Speaking to Collider, Antony Starr who plays Homelander in the hit Amazon Prime show, the Boys, revealed that Homelander, in season 3, would be a "homicidal maniac". You mean to say he wasn't already one!?

<http://dgit.in/homelanders3>