Disney+ surpasses 100 million subscribers worldwide

Just 16 months after its global launch, Disney+, has amassed a whopping 100 million subscribers worldwide. Disney CEO, Bob Chapek, announced this milestone during the company's annual shareholder meeting. Chapek said in a statement, "The enormous success of Disney+, which has now surpassed 100 million subscribers, has inspired us to be even more ambitious and to significantly increase our investment in the development of high-quality content". The company has enjoyed amazing success at the helm of hit shows such as The Mandalorian, WandaVision, and others. The streaming platform exceeded the company's initial projection of 60-90 million subscribers by November 2024. The company has set a target of 100+ new titles per year across Disney Animation, Marvel, Star Wars, National Geographic, and Disney Live-Action.
