Display is a pain

As with most smartwatches that open up through the back, expect difficulty when it comes to screen repairs with the new Mi Watch. The display assembly comes apart with a heat gun set to 300 degrees Celsius, and a razor blade. This process did, however, end up damaging the display.

Two buttons instead of one

Unlike the previous version which had only one protruding tactile button, the new Mi Watch has two. The two side buttons are held in place by tiny metal washers which are present inside the watch's body.
