WHAT'S NEW

Jeff Goldblum joins Dark Dice podcast

Jeff Goldblum of Jurassic Park fame is all set to begin a new adventure, an adventure of the Dungeons & Dragons (D&D) variety. The actor will be lending his voice to the Dark Dice podcast, where he will take on the mantle of the elven sorcerer, Balmur. Goldblum will be the voice of one of five player-characters, on a quest for revenge against another player-controlled team of characters. This is an improvised audio drama, because D&D, and there will be a lot of twists and turns, oh and plenty of dice rolling. The upcoming season of the Dark Dice podcast is all set to launch on May 12, and is titled The Long March. The Dark Dice podcast stands out for its production quality, including a diverse cast of characters, an original soundtrack, and even a live orchestra that uses over 30 medieval instruments with singers who can perform in Infernal, Icelandic and Elvish.

Captain America 4 is in the works

Anthony Mackie, first The Falcon, and now Captain America, is all set to suit up in the stars and stripes and dawn the shield again for Captain America 4. The news comes soon after the recent season finale of The Falcon and the Winter Soldier which aired on Disney+. Showrunner Malcom Spellrunner will be returning as script writer along with Dalan Musson for the movie. We can definitely confirm that we'll be seeing Sam Wilson continuing to carry the mantle of the first avenger, and we're assuming after the series' finale that Sebastian Stan will also be returning as The Winter Soldier for the movie. No other cast has been confirmed, but it has been confirmed in an interview with Marvel that there will be no Chris Evans. No release date has been announced for the movie yet.
