Hello Mr Editor,

It brings me great joy to write to you, on this June of 2021, marking precisely 20 years since I first bought and read Digit from my local newsstand.

Had it not been the lockdown, I had planned to visit Digit offices in Mumbai personally, here from my small town of Darbhanga, Bihar with that first edition of Digit in my hands to get it autographed by your entire team, but fate had other plans. Alas!

It also brings great joy to write to you as a 31 year old man who was only a boy who just had stepped in his teens to pick up Digit month after month and study it cover to cover like a true bibliophile.

I owe a great deal to Digit since it put me on a path of being a technophile and true connoisseur of technology and gadgets.

I would like to congratulate each and everyone from your amazing team who have kept our curious minds fed and happy, month after month over these past 20 years and I hope, will continue to light that "spark" amongst generations yet to come.

Keep up the good work team and godspeed! Here's to another 20 years of great work! CHEERS!!!

Wishing you joy,

—Kumar Rishikesh

Hey Team Digit,

Kudos in advance on turning 20 this year! Wishing the best for your commendable performance in this unforgettable 2-decade long journey of navigating naïve tech lovers like us into the world of technology. In this letter, I am going to tell my story of my first encounter with your magazine as well as my transformation from being a timid tech enthusiast to becoming a Digit Squad member along with some suggestions and requests for team Digit.

Firstly, I would like to introduce myself as Ahmed Faraz Khan living in Ajmer, a small city in Rajasthan. From my childhood days, I had a keen interest in every piece of tech lying around me. During initial years of my schooling, I was being teased and bullied due to my physical handicap and always kept myself at studies in order to excel at academics. Years passed on and my zeal for technology couldn't be properly channelised. During my summer vacations at school, I felt pretty bored and my mother, in order to break my monotony, brought a magazine from her college library containing stuff related to every sort of technology. And I can clearly recall it was 12th May, 2015 when I first came across your Digit magazine, which was the 10th Anniversary flip back Special Edition. It's first insight gave me goosebumps and I read it for about five hours straight and I can't explain in words how contented I felt. From that day itself, I became a regular reader and I consequently became a famous tech savvy guy in my family.

Then, my friend circle also started to increase. With time, I developed keen interest of writing reviews of smartphones but there was no such platform to embrace my skills but 2 years back when I was scrolling through my Instagram story, I came across an ad which quoted, "Want to become a digit certified squad member? There was a requirement of passing an exam in which I excelled and got selected as a Digit Squad member which provided me a platform to showcase my skills. I even earned my first income from its Digit Squad campaign which made my parents proud. I want to convey heartfelt thanks for accompanying me throughout these years, I hope and wish that you guys would make this magazine complete a whole century to 2101 and here are some of my suggestions for your magazine:

- It should include topics like life hacks and a column dedicated to bust some age-old tech myths.
- The magazine should contain a new career opportunity column in the field of technology and information of various tech courses assisting and inspiring other digit readers in life.

Apart from that, there is no reason of improvement from my point of view and your magazine is indeed mature enough as it is turning 20 this month. Best wishes to each and every member of Digit for working day and night in order to give freshly brewed content to its readers. Even during harsh days of pandemic, you never backed out making a two-decade long milestone which is going to be followed by several years to come.

—Ahmed Faraz Khan
