THE WORLD HAS GONE INTO A FRENZY SINCE THE START OF 2020 AND EVERYONE, THE STUDENTS and the professionals alike have been hit hard by this wave of chaos that seems to have engulfed the entire globe. It is in times like these that we wish that there were apps that could save us from all of this Brownian motion-esque state of affairs and make our day-to-day activities more organised and you know, like everything else on the internet, trackable. Well, as it would turn out, there are a host of apps that are made to cater those exact demands. We have cherry picked a few of them and listed all the tips and tricks that you should know about before taking a walk down the lane of an organised and well settled state of affairs when it comes to your daily activities.

MICROSOFT TO DO

In the last year we have seen a monumental shift in the working pattern and styles both individuals and organisations all over the world. With more and more workplaces adopting an online centric working pattern, organizer apps have become a part of the mainstream and many users have found their own niche in these apps, using the ones that suits their needs the best. One such app that quickly gained a lot of traction was Microsoft To Do, and here's a list of some
