

the app will cause the tree to die. All you need to do is, click on the same icon as you would for Planting a tree together, but there instead of the Plant together option, you will have to toggle the Deep Focus option. This will need you to give certain permissions to the app, which you can according to your own preferences.

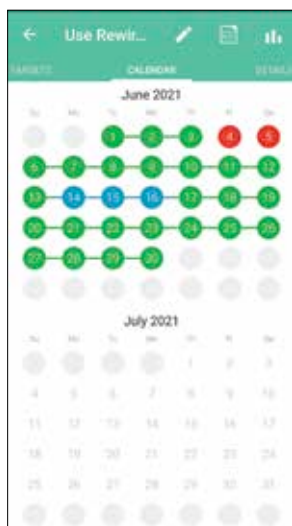

HABIT HUB

(The app has to be side-loaded using an APK as it's not listed on the Indian Playstore, but is shows in the Editor's choice section)

One of the applications listed on Google Play under the Editor's Choice Apps for focus and productivity, Habit Hub has been a fan favorite for years now. Since its release many changes have come along that have given the app the form that it has right now, with features that are hard to find in most other apps in its weight class. So, here we bring to you some tips and tricks that would help you boost your productivity while using Habit Hub.

CUSTOMISE YOUR HABIT CHAIN

One of the most useful productivity boosting features of the app is that it helps you keep a track of your task completion streak by showing you a habit chain that keeps on growing as you complete the tasks assigned on the days. This habit chain can be made for each one of the things that you want to do on regular intervals. But, say if you want to remove a day from the schedule because something else popped up, which caused a change of plans, you can simply skip or delete that day and it will show you that. To do that, just click on the date that you want to alter the status of and choose the relevant option from the dropdown. The habit chain will now reflect the changes made. In addition to that, you can add a note for a particular day. The same date button when clicked will show you an option to add a note. This note will help you keep track of why you skipped or deleted a day from your calendar in the future.

A screenshot from Habit, showing a sample inbuilt calendar with a streak

SORT YOUR HABITS INTO CATEGORIES

It can be hard to sometimes keep a track of which habit that you have scheduled pertains to which aspect of your life. For example, in some cases a meeting can also be for work or the fitness training appointment. In order to sort those doubts out, you can make categories that suit your needs. To make a category, just swipe from the left edge of your screen to reveal the menu which contains the option to create categories at the fourth place from the top. There, you can click the '+' symbol and add a category which can have its own name and colour. Now, whenever you create a new task, just assign it a category and it will be easier to recognise.

The slide in menu in Habit

SET REMINDERS FOR A HABIT

You would have used your calendar or alarm clock for this, but while programming in your habits you can create reminders for executing the tasks as a part of your defined habit in the app itself. What you will need to do is click the three dots on the right-hand top corner of the habit for which you wish to create a reminder. From there, select the 'Reminder' option from the drop down and start adding the reminders. Each reminder can be customised to have its own time and day. Say, you have trouble starting the yoga routine on Monday, but on Wednesday it fits in the schedule better, you can have 3 reminders for Monday and just a single one for Wednesday.

SHIFT IT ALL TO YOUR HOME SCREEN

The premium version of the app allows the users to create and utilise widgets that help a ton in keeping track of their progress. Humans have been known to be responsive to instant gratification and what better way to get motivated than by seeing your own progress as an easily readable graph. The widget once added from the regular menu to your device allows you to choose which category to display and mark the status of the daily habit right from the home screen. This is something that could

Multiple custom reminders that can be set in the app

A habit widget on the home screen