LIVE GIGS

During the COVID-19 pandemic, large gatherings have started to feel like a parallel universe as we have been locked inside forever.

As places have started opening up again, you may want to visit a concert sometime in the future when it's safer. To explore what's been playing around you, select 'Browse' on your desktop app and then click on 'Concerts'.

Check on the different concerts taking place and pay your visit once things get better. Make sure you change your location whenever you're moving out or coming back to see what's happening around you. Else, you might miss the most happening stuff of the town.

SPOTIFY'S WEEKLY PLAYLIST

Every week, Spotify suggests a list of the 30 most amazing songs depending upon your music choices, which are scarily good. The index consists of most of your favourite songs that you regularly hear and the new releases that you might like or match to your song preferences. If you check the 'Made for you' section on Spotify; it gets updated every Monday with 30 new songs that you'd probably enjoy.

Also, there's one release radar playlist that gets updated every Friday. So, we suggest you check that out too. Who knows when you'll stumble upon your new favourite track!

PREVIEW MUSIC

A preview of the music gives you an overview of how well the song is performing with the audience. To get the preview of the song on iOS, tap on the title of the track and hold it for a few seconds; the song preview will automatically pop up.

To get the preview of each song, you can choose to slide over each song to get multiple previews.

SONGS TO YOUR SPEED

Like our choices, the songs we chose sometimes have a similar tone or tempo, making it easy for Spotify to identify our liking and present the same to us. For example, if you are something that mostly likes to listen to old Hindi songs or mashups, Spotify will suggest the same depending upon the speed they are running at.

For the same, from the 'Browse' screen, pick a running playlist, and Spotify will sense which kind of songs you hear the most or suit your style.

LINK TO A SPECIFIC PART

Skip to 4:55 or skip to 2:35 are some of the common statements that you make when you want to drive someone's attention on a particular line or stanza. However, you don't have to tell them anymore! Instead, send them the link or they'll directly jump to the part you want them to see.

Right-click on the track and select 'Copy Spotify URI' to copy the track's URL. Paste the URI on the text and add '#time 3:56'. When the receiver clicks on it, they will be directed towards that particular time without the hassle of forwarding the song.

BUILD YOUR LIBRARY

If you're really interested in building your own library, then there are a couple of ways that you can build your own library on Spotify. Adding your favourite albums, tracks, and music to the playlist is one way and we've already covered that in this article earlier; however, the other one you can do this is by saving music to your own library.

Apart from these, you can also choose to add music, tracks, albums, podcasts, and much more by clicking on the save sign. The save sign on Spotify is right next to the song in the desktop app.
