

Hasselblad 907X Anniversary Edition Kit

In the camera universe, the brand Hasselblad is akin to hallowed ground. For some, it is the epitome of desirability and recently, Hasselblad just launched the most desirable camera of the lot. Commemorating 80 years in the business, Hasselblad has come out with the 907X Anniversary Edition Kit. Only 800 examples of this limited edition will ever be made. The 907X Anniversary Edition Kit features a 50MP medium format (that's considerably larger than Full Frame for those who don't know) CMOS sensor with 14 stops of dynamic range. It is also an interchangeable lens camera and comes with an engraved XCD 30mm F3.5 wide angle lens while the CFV II 50C digital back body comes with a tilting touch display that allows users to take shots at waist level, like the cameras from a bygone age. The screen is 3.2 inches across, features 2.36 million dots and can be used to frame shots, set focus using touch, and navigate through the menu system. The Anniversary Edition Kit also features a bunch of accessories that other kits don't include, like a control grip and optical viewfinder. These components are all designed specifically for the special-edition and feature custom detailing like the Hasselblad logo etched on the focus ring of the lens and the brand name along with "Since 1941" handwritten on the body. Hasselblad is known for its colour science, and this one is obviously no different with it featuring Hasselblad's Natural Colour Solution or HNCs and is the best in the business when showing off the most realist and natural colours is of paramount importance. It also has 16-bit colour depth, can be charged via USB Type-C and features two UHS-II SD Card slots. It should also be noted that the digital camera body and lens on the 907X can be used with pretty much any Hasselblad camera that uses the V-system mounting interface which includes old school film cameras as well.

TAG Heuer Formula 1 Senna Special Edition 2021

It has been 27 years since the death of one of the, if not the best Formula 1 drivers of all time, and yet Ayrton Senna's name still garners a value that a handful of individuals throughout sporting history can boast of. And paying tribute to one of their most valuable brand ambassadors is TAG Heuer, with the 2021 edition of the TAG Heuer Formula 1 Senna Special Edition. For the 2021 Edition TAG Heuer has concentrated its design efforts on the iconic and instantly recognisable yellow helmet of Mr Senna. Featuring prominently amidst the blacked out watch face are accents in the exact shade of yellow as seen on the helmet. And to make it even more obvious that the watch is a Senna special, we can see the "S" logo and the name "Senna" on two locations on the front side of the watch. Once on the bezel and once on the watch face itself on one of the sub dials. On the underside, is an etched silhouette of the helmet and an inscription that says "Senna Special Edition". The strap of the watch is made from calfskin and is jet black in colour with a grainy texture, making it look like a well-worn Formula 1 tyre on race day. Another nod to the helmet can be seen in the straight yellow stitching that is featured on the strap. The watch body itself is a 43mm stainless steel case with a bead blasted black DLC coated finish. This blacked out colour scheme really makes all the lettering on the watch face and the hands of the watch stand out. While on the subject of the watch hands, which are black gold-plate by the way, we can also see a coating of Super-LumiNova that makes the watch hands glow when in low-light. The bezel of the watch is of the gear-toothed kind and so is the crown to adjust the time. The pusher buttons on each side of the crown are smooth though and again, finished in all black.
