

Android 13 leaks

Android 13 leak showcases four new and colorful dynamic theme styles.
<https://dgit.in/feb22-68>

TSMC plan to spend big

TSMC plans to spend at least $40bn in 2022 to address the global chip shortage.
<https://dgit.in/feb22-69>

>> FEEDBACK FOR THE JANUARY 2022 ISSUE

Send feedback to magazine@digit.in join us on telegram - t.me/digitgeek or on discord - discord.gg/myD8Xvt

I'm a budding software developer from Kerala. My educational background isn't based on computer software so I had to pave my way through to reach the position I currently have. Since I don't have a programming related friends circle I had some difficulties in finding out new technologies out there. I always struggled with phone addiction so I thought I needed a change by reducing screen time and increase reading time. So I started looking for technology magazines in India that have dedicated columns that introduces newer software technologies and other stuff. Once when I visited a bookshop I got a chance to read Digit magazine and it was love at first sight. I immediately subscribed for the 1 year plan. When I received the first issue I was very happy to see a dedicated 'devworx' page which introduced new technologies and showed how to use it step by step as well. This is was all I expected from the magazine. Kudos on the good work and waiting for next issue to see another technology get introduced.

Thank you,
 — Joseph Dee

Letter of the Month

Dear Digit

I am a highschooler from Kashmir. My hobbies are programming and stargazing.

This is my first Digit edition in a while. I was ecstatic to find your mail in my inbox to prebook this mag and filled with excitement, I clicked on Buy Now and it redirected me to your website. I filled in the details and everything and proceeded to pay but it didn't work. The website only got reloaded and nothing happened. I really felt like everyone was conspiring against me to stop me from buying a Digit mag! I even complained to you but to no avail. Miraculously, on the third day it worked and I smashed the Pay button.

I've been a Digit reader for almost 4 years now. I have a full bookshelf of Digit mags and all the stuff that comes with them. I've even "preserved" my very second Digit magazine that I bought in October 2017. Speaking of that, I absolutely loved that edition (50+ Ways To Have Fun With Tech) with its fascinating art and its content especially the 50+ ways to have fun with tech! I was wondering if you could do something like that with the next edition because that'd really be a mood-lifter in this COVID period :D.

Anyhow, did you get to see the live coverage of the JWST launch on Christmas? I bet you did! That telescope has been all the buzz for a while now and I was eagerly anticipating a full dedicated section on it.

And now the good ol' Agent001. Many readers have been asking to update its design but I don't think you need to bring some big conspicuous change to it. After all, he's been the agent in my fantasies since middle school! By the way, I just noticed that this mag didn't come with a DVD. I guess, you implemented the idea of e-DVD long before this but since I'm that late Internet Explorer, I think you should not discontinue the DVDs (if you did) because I miss that feel. But anyway, I don't have a CD-ROM anymore so it's not a concern for me.

The digitdiary section is awesome; please never discontinue that. It gives curious readers like me a sneak peek of what goes on in the digit HQ.

This edition was amazing nonetheless! I found the FastTrack to Researching and the dmystify on plants quite helpful. (I'm more of a science geek myself.)

PS: Yes, I love parentheses. And, I almost thought that I got rickrolled on page number 17 in that topmost image!

Yours truly,
 — Rumaan Rafiq

