

THE LOVE YOU PAY FOR...

TOP PAID APPS WE RECOMMEND YOU GET ASAP!

Ali Akbar Merchant | aliakbar@digit.in

While hardware might be capturing the headlines with their overpowered specs and flashy designs, these days though, those 'wares' are 'hard' to get. Geddit? But there is one thing that is still easy to get and contributes just as much to our love for tech, and that is apps and software. Here we have curated a list of the top paid apps to get on some of the most common operating systems to make your life easier and keep you entertained while being productive. If you are willing to part with a bit of dough that is...

ANDROID

DroidCamX (₹400)

With more people working from home now than ever before, meetings and communication is majorly done through video calls. Most of us working on laptops have to make do with the outrageously underwhelming webcam that's built-in. But honestly, there is a better way. In fact, there is an infinitely better camera right in your pocket – your smartphone. With DroidCamX you can use the cameras in your smartphone as a webcam to have 1080p video calling facility. You can also set it up as a security or surveillance camera if required. The setup process is super simple and connecting it with a computer is intuitive as well.

Bouncer (₹99)

With every major update, Google slightly modifies the third-party app permissions on Android. And as we all know, most apps these days want access to everything on your device, even things that are absolutely irrelevant to the functions of the app. Not only is it a privacy disaster but it can also be a significant drain on the smartphone's battery. Bouncer gives you the ability to monitor and control the permissions each third-party app has. It can also give temporary permissions to a particular app which basically grants permission to an app while it's active but the moment you get out of the app, those permissions are revoked automatically.

PPSSPP Gold (₹120)

Even the least powerful mainstream smartphones these days are significantly more powerful than some of the older consoles. If you're jonesing for some nostalgia and want to re-live the games from
