WHAT'S NEW

New studio SEE claims it will start shooting movies in space by 2024

A company called Space Entertainment Enterprise has announced that it is going to launch the world's first zero-gravity studio. The studio will include shooting space as well as a multi-purpose arena. Dubbed the SEE-1, the studio will have films, TV shows and such being shot there. In fact, the studio is actually co-producing Tom Cruise's next film, which is set to be shot in space. A tweet from NASA administrator Jim Bridenstine also confirmed the outrageous news. Cruise has just partnered with Elon Musk's SpaceX and was actually looking at filming his next film in outer space. If this does happen, it will be the first time in history that a major feature film will be filmed in the cold emptiness of space. Details of the project are still kept tightly under wraps but we do know that the film will not be a part of the Mission: Impossible series. SEE-1 will be built by Axiom Space, a company that also received NASA's approval to construct, design and build the International Space Station's entertainment module. <https://dgit.in/shootinspace>

Amazon's LOTR series will go beyond 'The One Ring'

"One ring to rule them all" is a quote that is synonymous with The Lord of the Rings trilogy, but that will no longer be the case. Amazon's highly anticipated The Lord of the Rings TV series based on J R R Tolkien's books will feature not one, but many rings. This is made evident by the title of the show – The Lord of the Rings: The Rings of Power. The TV series serves as a prequel to the books and the films. According to the showrunners J D Payne and Patrick McKay, this show is all about exploring "all the major stories of Middle-earth's Second Age". The duo said that so far the audiences have only seen the story of the One Ring, but before that there were many rings and the TV series showcases the story of all of them. The ensemble cast of the show includes the likes of Peter Mullan of Westworld fame, Robert Aramayo and Joseph Mawle from GoT, Ismael Cruz Córdova from The Mandalorian, How I Met Your Mother's Nazanin Boniadi, and many others. <https://dgit.in/manyrings>
