

Meta rebuilds ads system in iOS

Meta reportedly rebuilding its ads system so it can have personalized ads in iOS as it has been losing ad revenue. <https://digit.in/mar22-13>

Mircrosoft holds HoloLens 3

Microsoft has reportedly killed its plans for the HoloLens 3 due to internal differences within the company. <https://digit.in/mar22-14>

Airtel Xstream Premium vs Tata Play Binge Plus: WHICH IS THE BEST STREAMING SERVICE FOR YOU?

Content titans clash!
It's the battle of the OTT's. Which one will come out on top?

G. S. Vasan | feedback@digit.in Airtel has just launched a new streaming service called Xstream Premium that offers 15 Indian and Global OTT platforms in one super app (which also goes by the same name). What this gives users, is the ability to access its content from a variety of platforms/ devices using a single login at just ₹149 a month. But, of course, there are caveats, which we will get into shortly. Also, while skimming through Airtel's offerings, one would want to know how it stacks up against the other popular brand in the field, i.e., Tata Sky Binge Plus which recently changed its name to Tata Play Binge Plus. So, let's do just that.

CONTENT

Before we get into their differences, we will be looking at the streaming services only, not the hardware side of things. These so-called smart set-top-boxes are like a hybrid between streaming devices and traditional set-top-boxes. Meanwhile, the following streaming services boast portability, on-the-go entertainment through multiple devices, and a single subscription to a host of OTT apps.

Having cleared that, let's begin.

Now, as mentioned already, Airtel Xstream Premium gives you a single sign-in to 15 OTT apps including names like SonyLIV, ErosNow, Lionsgate Play, Hoichoi, ManoramaMax, Shemaroo, Ultra, HungamaPlay, EPICON, Docubay, DivoTV, Klikk, Nammaflix, Dollywood, and Shorts TV.

The Airtel Xstream Premium library also consists of 10,500 movies and shows along with 350+ Live TV channels.

On the other hand, the Tata Play Binge+ brings a bouquet of 13 OTT apps including names like Prime Video, Disney+ Hotstar, Eros Now, Voot Select, SonyLIV, Sun Next, Hungama Play, among others. If this list seems more interesting than the Airtel one, then wait till you hear about the all-new combo pack that adds Netflix to the roster.

So, one disadvantage with Airtel Xstream Premium is the lack of big names like Amazon Prime, Netflix, and Hotstar.

Let's now move on to one of the other main factors to consider:

PRICE AND AVAILABILITY

Airtel Xstream Premium is priced at ₹149 per month. But this is a limited-time offer post which will cost ₹999 a month. If you want to purchase an annual subscription, then it costs ₹1,499 now while after the introductory price, it will cost ₹5,999. The service is exclusive to Airtel customers and will be accessible across Mobiles, Tablets, Laptops through the app or web and on the TV through the Xstream set-top-box.

In contrast, Tata Sky Binge+ will set you ₹149 a month (with access to up to three mobile devices). And if you wish to access the content on both mobile handsets as well as TVs, then that would be ₹299 per month. Lastly, the Netflix combo pack costs ₹379 a month. 