

MOBILE MADNESS

You have to try these games out on your smartphone!

Team Digit

Rush Rally Origins

Rush Rally Origins is a racing game by Brown-monster Limited. In total, the game has three game modes. Time Trial, Race, and Championship. In Time Trial, you will have to complete the track in a set amount of time to get either a gold, silver or bronze medal. In Race mode, you will race against different opponents and of course, you'll have to be the first one to the finish line. Lastly, in Championship mode, you'll be given a car and a map to race on and you'll have to finish in the top 3. If you do, you move on to the next stage. As of the latest update, there are six stages in the Championship mode. Now, you must be wondering why we gave the game such a low rating. First, the EXORBITANT price that the devs are charging for anyone to download and play the game. As of February 2022, the price of this game on the PlayStore is ₹460. For barely any content. We could forgive the high price if the game really delivered in terms of gameplay. But it doesn't.

Coming to the graphics first, they are mediocre at best. Even at ultra settings, the game didn't feel or even render like "ultra" settings. We had to manually check 2-3 times in the settings menu to make sure that the graphics were set to ultra. Secondly, the sound design. The music is bad, the car sounds are bad. In short, this game is better played at 0 volume. ^_(_)/_/"

There are only two camera angles to switch between in this game. One is the classic top-down angle and the other one is a very weird "Retro Isometric" angle which is just like the top-down angle but the camera's position has been offset to the right and it zooms in and out based on your car's speed. The core racing experience was a nightmare in this game. You get a lot of choice when it comes to controls. You can use touch, tilt, wheel and arrows. But all four of them are really poorly calibrated which results in you either overturning or under turning on critical turns.

All in all, Rush Rally Origins is a really rage inducing game that we strongly advise you to stay away from. We think that the ₹460 is better spent somewhere else. Look elsewhere if you're in the market for some good racing games.

Bridge Constructor Portal

Bridge Constructor Portal is an aptly named "Bridge Building" game by Headup. The game has a lot going for it, mainly due to the "Portal" branding. The main objective of this game is to build bridges (duh). But the backstory is what makes this game a lot more interesting. You see, you - the player are selected in an interview to build bridges throughout the Aperture Science facility for the easy transportation of employees. Hence, you need to work with bridges as well as portals in order to accomplish this task. You're guided by none other than GLaDOS throughout the game; voiced by the original voice actor - Ellen McLain no less.

Coming to the core gameplay, you will need to build bridges between two points of land. Beneath the empty space will be "acid" which obviously the employees are not allowed to fall in. Hence, you need to take the cables and wires necessary in order to build a strong bridge. The bridge cables can only be extended to a certain length and hence you will definitely need more than one cable to cover the distance. These cables will either be supported by more bridge cables beneath them or strong wires above them. Your end goal is to get the employees and their carts from one end of the level to the other. You will also get a chance to work with the propulsion gel, repulsion gel, companion cube and much more.

All in all, Bridge Constructor Portal is a fantastic game to play if you're a Portal universe fanatic or just like construction games in general. Since the devs have acquired an official licence to use the SKUs from the Portal universe, the whole game feels more like a part of the Portal universe rather than an off-brand knock off. The only thing that we didn't like is the steep pricing at ₹400. We highly recommend you to try this game out if you're willing to spend that much. If you don't like it, you can just refund your payment. If you do end up liking it though, make sure to play through all the mind-bending 60 levels.

