WHAT'S NEW

Netflix shows cancelled after subscriber loss and stock drop

The recent revelation from popular streaming service Netflix, regarding its subscriber loss for the first time in 10 years, led to a massive 30 per cent decline in its stock value. The fallout has also led to the cancellation of several shows on the platforms including some with high-profile creators. According to a report by The Wrap, Netflix's Animation arm suffered major cuts first. The Director of Creative Leadership and Development for Original Animation, Phil Rynda, was let go, along with members of his team, in April. Animation projects are in danger of being cancelled. Roald Dahl's The Twits already got cancelled and some fans weren't pleased. Netflix also cancelled the anticipated animated series based on Jeff Smith's comic book series Bone. Reportedly, Netflix also cancelled the Bright 2 sequel starring Will Smith. TV series such as Pretty Smart and Archive 81 were also cancelled after merely one season each.
