

Saint Laurent x Polaroid SX-70 limited edition

Polaroid and Saint Laurent have collaborated to create a super priced instant photo camera, and what's more, it's a limited edition! The collaboration takes the Polaroid SX-70 instant camera and turns the luxury up a few notches. It does that by featuring a range of luxury finishes like leather, leopard prints, checkerboard finishes and stars. It has a majorly steel construction and is compatible with SX-70 films and the brands have also collaborated to create a new black and white film which can be used with this camera. Polaroid has collaborated with a number of luxury brands like Teva, Fendi and Lacoste in the past but with this one seems to take the luxury factor to the next level. The camera costs a whopping $1230 which is a whole $800 more than the Polaroid SX-70 in its normal, un-limited edition guise. The price, the luxury and the limited edition tag, make it a wonderful edition for the ardent collectors among us.

2022 Porsche 911 Sport Classic

A new Porsche 911 has been revealed and this time, all that makes it special is old. Let us explain. The 2022 Porsche 911 Sport Classic is a limited edition model (only 1250 units will ever be built) that is created to pay homage to the legendary 1972 911 Carrera RS 2.7. It is part of Porsche's heritage-inspired lineup and features design queues inspired by legendary Porsche cars from yesteryears. The car comes in a shade of grey that was first seen on the Porsche 356, has white hand-painted racing stripes that run across the middle of the vehicle, and hand-painted numbered decals on either side. In terms of the shape, the 911 Sport Classic has a very 70's inspired ducktail spoiler and the air intake cutouts on the rear fenders have also been removed as to not interfere with the smooth flow of the hips. When it comes to the mechanical elements of the car, one of the major changes, is the 7-speed manual gearbox and rear-wheel drive when compared to the car it is based on which is the 911 Turbo S. The engine has also been detuned a bit to accommodate the manual transmission and the rear-wheel drive and produces 543 horsepower as compared to the significantly higher power output of the 911 Turbo S.

Honda Hawk 11 Cafe Racer

Seems the neo-retro style in automobiles has a huge market since they keep on coming up with new and exciting models that borrow design elements from old school vehicles. And it certainly makes sense as well, after all, old school vehicles looked awesome. Honda recently revealed their newest neo-retro bike at the Osaka Motorcycle show and what a stunner it is. The Honda Hawk 11 shares most of its components with the 1084cc Africa Twin but with a cafe racer aesthetic as compared to the Africa Twin's world bashing adventure looks. So let's talk about what the Hawk 11 does differently. First up are the looks which feature an old school looking circular headlight at the front nestled in a swanky streamlined fairing. To complete the cafe racer aesthetic, the Hawk 11 has clip-on handlebars and a muscular tank as well. It features the same 1084cc engine that we have seen on the Africa Twin producing 101 horsepower and 104Nm of torque. Now that we are done with what makes the bike go let's talk about what makes the bike stop. On the front, we twin discs with NISSAN callipers and on the rear, we have a single disc. We don't know yet if the Honda Hawk 11 will make it to the Indian market but we certainly hope we get to see it cruising down our roads soon.
