WHAT'S NEW

Gucci builds a town of its own in Roblox

Gucci has announced that they will be creating another dedicated digital space of its own, called Gucci Town in the video game Roblox. This is not the first time that Gucci has done something like this. In 2021, the brand hosted a space in the same video game, calling it the Gucci Garden. While that was a limited-time release, the Gucci Town would be a more permanent installation.

Designed to be like a piazza, this will be a place for the fans and followers of the brand to meet and experience Gucci through in-game items. Gucci explained the idea behind this concept. They wrote on their website, "A digital destination on Roblox dedicated to those seeking the unexpected, Gucci Town is a place to discover more about the House and its heritage alongside the creative vision of Alessandro Michele, as well as to express one's individuality and connect with like-minded individuals from all over the world."

Gucci Town will have several spaces, with their own special purpose serving the needs of the Roblox players exploring it. <https://dgit.in/GucciTown>

Robot companions for the elderly in New York

You read it right. The robots are here. The New York State Office for the Aging (NYSOFA) has come up with a scheme to distribute intelligent robot companions called ElliQ, to elderly citizens. These robots will not be helping them with any real-world tasks that require active physical involvement like feeding and helping with chores. However, they will be actively helping the elderly with tasks such as calling their loved ones when in need, and keeping them company by having small conversations. The robot can make judgements about the interactions and understand what kind of a personality they have to adapt how it interacts.

For now though, the program will be responsible only for the distribution of these companion robots to 800 older adults who would be chosen by the NYSOFA. If an individual out of the scheme, wants to get their hands on ElliQ, it is also available for online orders. <https://dgit.in/RoboHelpers>
