

Missing Link' in merging galaxies

Astronomers have detected a shock wave generated by potential collision of massive celestial structures. <https://digit.in/jul22-07>

Jit to simplify security for devs

The startup has received $38.5m in funding, aims to make product security simpler for its developers. <https://digit.in/jul22-08>

Mind-Boggling Movies

A look at the movies that have given our minds a hard time

Pritam Biswas | feedback@digit.in ovies may come and movies may go, but some leave us with questions unanswered. Not just plot twists we did not expect, but an entire storyline that left us wanting more. In this article we bring to you a collection of some such movies.

M

PREDESTINATION (2014)

Predestination is a journey. A journey in time. Ethan Hawke plays a 'temporal agent' in the movie who is stuck in a mind-bending time loop. The movie portrays itself as linear in the first few minutes. We are fooled into believing that it is an ordinary story of an agent who is on a mission of catching an elusive criminal 'The Fizzle Bomber.' The plot throws us into a dizzying ride of paradoxes and plot twists, with the greatest one coming right before the credits roll. Predestination is arguably the best time-travelling movie to grace the screens since Primer. Expect to question the world and yourself even days after watching this absolute mind-bender of a movie.

trip with her friends. What started out to be a beautiful and windy day, changes rapidly with the arrival of a storm cloud. The boat called 'Triangle' capsizes and their only hope of survival is a ship. The group of friends soon realise the ship is derelict and someone is watching them. What follows next, is a mind-boggling affair, directed beautifully by Christian Smith. Triangle is very hard to follow and every detail needs to be closely monitored to get the ending. 'If' you get the ending, that is!

IDENTITY (2003)

The movie lives the same life as a 'slasher' till the mind-bending moment arrives. The movie takes you to a night of a nasty storm in Nevada where ten strangers are stuck in a motel. The pace of the film is set by a killer, in hiding, taking out the characters one at a time. Join John Cusack as he unravels the mishappenings of the night. Identity by James Mangold remains a cult classic even after two decades after its release. Critics have hinted at the flaws, but the fans have lapped up the movie and the reality-altering ending.

made when the creators indulged in illegal substances. The story follows Donnie, a teenage boy, who stands out from the rest of the crowd and appears troubled. He meets a mysterious figure in a monstrous rabbit costume called 'Frank' who tells him the world is going to end in 28 days. Following this, Frank manipulates Donnie into committing several crimes. The people around him blame it on his mind, while the viewers are left perplexed by his visions. Donnie Darko remains one of the most confusing films to have ever graced the theatres. The most beautiful part of the watching experience is following every intricate detail to make sense of the entire plot once the credits roll.

MULHOLLAND DRIVE (2001)

David Lynch's Mulholland Drive starring Naomi Watts is an homage to mindwarping films. In the film, a woman wakes up after surviving a car crash at Mulholland Drive and makes her way down to an apartment in Los Angeles. There the two central characters, Rita and Betty, meet each other. Rita, the survivor of the crash has no clue about her identity and where she has come from. She just has loads of cash and a strange blue key with her. She along with Betty, goes out on an adventure in the dazzling world of cinema and crime, where Betty helps Rita to remember her identity. The film is brilliant and got Lynch the nomination for the Best Director at the Academy Awards.

TRIANGLE (2009)

Triangle is a psychological horror film that unravels very slowly. A single mother played by Melissa George goes on a boating

DONNIE DARKO (2001)

Donnie Darko is confusing. A small subset of people who have watched the film think the movie was

What are some of the movies you think we may have missed out in this list? Write to us at editor@digit.in! 